

LOOKING AFTER YOURSELF

Getting active after birth

It is important to rest and recover from the birth of your baby. Being active can help with your body and mind. When you feel ready after birth, start with some easy movements. If you are unsure about what is right for you speak with your GP.

Walking or join a local pram walking group

Yoga/ stretching/ Pilates

Swimming, 4-6 weeks after birth

Light gardening/ housework

Light weight training

Nutrition

Healthy food is great for your body and mind. Eat a variety of the 5 food groups to keep your energy up!

Vegetables and legumes/beans

Fruits

Wholegrains (bread, rice, cereals, pastas)

Dairy and plant-based alternatives

Meat, Seafood and plant-based protein

Breastfeeding and nutrition

You need more food if you are breastfeeding. Your body uses this extra food to make breastmilk.

Most breastfeeding mothers feel hungrier than usual. All mothers can use their body to guide how much you eat and drink.

Emotional wellbeing

If you experience any of the below for more than a few days reach out for some help.

A Child and Family Health Nurse, Aboriginal Health Worker, Midwife or GP can help.

Constant low mood

Don't enjoy normal activities

Loss of appetite

Hard to relax or sleep

Cry often for no reason

Healthy Beginnings for HNEKids acknowledge the traditional custodians of the land on which we work, live and gather, recognising their continuing connection to land, water and community. We pay respects to Elders past, present and emerging, as well as Aboriginal people who have provided valuable guidance to the development of this project.
